The young colored gentlemen of Ithaca are making preparations for a grand picnic and dance at Atwater's Landing, Cayuga Lake, on Thursday afternoon and evening. July 17th. The efforts which are being put forth by the committee of arrangements, consisting of Messrs. S. G. Howard, W. E. Johnson, and F. Carlisle, insure that every possible precaution will be taken to make the occasion one of the pleasantest of the season. If you want a good time, go to Atwater's on the 17th.

New Instructor in Mathematics at the University.

Mr. James McMahon, who has been in Ithaca for the last year and a half, and has aided the mathematical faculty of the University in the preparation of their new algebra soon to be published, has been appointed instructor in mathematics for the coming year. Mr. McMahon is a graduate of Trinity college, Dublin, of the class of ics throughout the course, and took highest honors in those subjects at graduation, securing the Wray and Brooke prizes. Mr. organizaton.

Last night as a reporter of the DENOCRAT was meandering down Blate street toward the depot, enjoying the beauties of nature which abound in the vicinity of the yacht landing, he came across a couple of individuals who disturbed the peaceful serenity of his thoughts and broke the quiet monotony of the scene. The aforesaid individuals were a man and woman apparently of the genus tramp. Nobody in the neighborhood knew who they were, whence they came, or whither they were bound. The man had evidently looked on the wine when it was red, or more likely on the beer when it was muddy. He had imbibed just enough to make him contrary, cross, and loquacious. Though sceming to be tramps, the man and general dilapidation and decay which of indolence. The woman was dressed rather neatly, and the man wore a black suit in good condition and a shirt approximately white. The woman carried a basket holding about a bushel, filled, as nearly as could be seen, with clothing; and both The personal appearance of the couple therefore was not striking; but the wrangle in which they were engaged called everybody's attention to them. man was tired, probably, and wanted to stop and rest. The woman preferred to move on. She saw that they were creating a sensation, and that they would probably be given lodgings in the cooler if they lingered. Both of them had full command of a choice vocabulary of pet names, which they used without stint. They gradually moved along, however, till they reached the inlet; and the last the reporter saw of them the man was comfortably seated on the railing of the bridge, the dialogue was in full blast, and an amused and admiring crowd surrounded the chief actors.

Slaterville Springs.

The popularity of Slaterville Springs as a summer resort is steadily and rapidly increasing. This is coming about, not through the common methods of extensive puffing by those financially interested in find that their business is not as it should winning the public favor, but rather because every one who passes a few days or the simple country boy as he goes by, getweeks at the Fountain House, at Slater | ting him into the store, and there filling friends to go. A Warring to Fish Pirates. Editor . DAILY DEMOCRAT:-We are informed by a credible witness that the fish pirates of Cayuga are getting a little too | bold now-a-days. One fisherman saw two young men who reside at the corner of the Lake with 84 black bass in their boat, a few days ago with a seine in the stern which they averred they caught with a fly. This is too thin. Fly fishing is not so good as they would try to make out, and especially in Cayuga Lake. We think they Binghamton. may be obliged to show what kind of a this large number of game fich Detroit, Mich. took the best, for the benefit of the lovers of Isaac Walton sport. from Indian Ter. Letter from an Indignant Clothier. Editor Daily Democrat—Sir: We do not pen these few lines with the intention that they should serve as an advertisement, but for the purpose of assuming you that there is more unprovoked spite and envy existing in the clothing circle in this city than in any other hamlet in the United States. Can you assign any reason why this feeling should be more aroused in Ithaca than in other places? Not at all, The field is large enough for all who try to do a legitimate business. But the collar becomes tighter and tighter each day and week around the neck of all those health. who do a skin business. And when they be they do the Chatham St. act, by halting ville, wants to go again and wants all his him up with rotgut whiskey and cheap cimay put up-which is being done every day. The New York Werts of July use ! lishes the following: The inhabitants of Dodge City, Kansas, were surprised to learn upon arising this morning that a most cold-blooded murder had taken piace in their midst. Some days ago a Texan Miss Anna Mintz left this morning for named Choate drove some steers into towa, which he readily disposed of at a good figure. He was a rough, good natured man, and spent much of the proceeds or the cattle sale at the bars of the saloons, and he also gambled freely with varying success. Last night be visited several fare banks ! and at each cashed in considerably more Will P. Clapp arrived home last night chips than he bought. His winnings put him in good humor and then he started Mr. and Mrs. J. Cliff left last evening out to "paint the town red."

He visited every saloon on his road, and was hilarious when he reached "Bill Smith's," where he met Dave St. Clair Will H. Lamkin and wife left for and several other gamblers. Choate and St. Clair had quarrelled in a gambling den and the quarrel was renewed. Choate persisted in saying that he was a better man than St. Clair, and the latter gave him the lie. Choate replied with blasphemous volubility that St. Clair was "no good," and then drew a revolver from his pocket. But Thad Thompson and A. A. Hungerford he never used it, as St. Clair, quick as a flash, drew his "gqn" and sent a ball crashing through the cattle dealer's brain.

Choate fell to the floor dead and a free fight ensued, the noise of which attracted the attention of the authorities, who entered the saloon and arrested St. Clair. The latter is a gambler of note, and has lived here some time. He is a comparatively young man, and is said to be a gradnate of Cornell University in New York state. Excitement among the cattle men runs high to-night. They threaten to lynch St. Clair, who is in jail under a special guard to protect him from the infurated friends of the man he killed.
